RAILWAY MAN LOOKS FOR HEAVY TRAVEL

W. F. Yeo Thinks Western People Will Take Advantage of Low Rates.

"September promises to be a big month for eastern travel," said W. F. Yeo, local passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines, Friday afternoon. "The crop indications in the west point to farmers having considerable money, and after the harvesting is done many of them will maturally take a trip east. More people have gone west than east so far this summer, owing largely to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Scattle, but present indications are that the month of September will see the tables turned more or less and many will take advantage of the low tourist rates to eastern points, which are will see the tables turned more or less and many will take advantage of the low tourist rates to eastern points, which are in effect until September 20.

Mr. Yeo, in connection with the foregoing statement, called attention to the special thirty-day tickets from St. Louis and Chicago to New York city, and various seashore and Atlantic coast resorts, which are being sold daily during this month and September. He is of the opinion that many westerners will take advantage of these rates to visit Atlantic seaboard points. The tickets to New York from St. Louis and Chicago are sold daily at the two latter cities. In Salt Lake City they will be on sale September 10 and 11, Mr. Yeo announces.

The round trip rate from St. Louis to New York Mr. Yeo says, will be $32.50 over the Ft. Wayne or Standard route, and $25.50 over the Pan-Handle or differential route.

HIGH SCHOOL CADETS DID A MAGNIFICENT WORK

No one will dispute nor be jealous of the fact that of all the individuals and organizations who combined to entertain the G. A. R. this past week the best work was done by the boys of the Salt Lake High school cadets. These little soldiers were at their posts day and night, and not once made a mistake nor gave rise to the slightest complaint. So sure, effective and silent was their work that it passed unnoticed at first, then when the visitors came to say good-bye the results of the cadets' efforts suddenly shone forth as surpassing that of many a committee of grown-up folks.

The trim disciplined little soldier hardly five feet high and weighing not over one hundred pounds had done his work, quickly and silently, in a way that West Point itself might well copy.

Extend the thanks and the praise of the Gand Army of the Republic to the Salt Lake liths school cadets.

Col. F. M. Sterrett, executive director of the G. A. R. and head of all arrangements to entertain the guests, said:

What the fingers are to the hand the high school cadets have been to the exceptive committee this week. They were the ones who came closest in touch with the visitors, and on whom, more than on anyone else, hung the good name of the city as host. Poor work by the boys would have given rise to a cloud of just complaint against Sait Lake Itself as a poor provider, for give a man a poor bed and you cannot hope to please him otherwise. They did their part to the utmost. I extend to them the personal and official thanks of the G. A. R. entertain the grand Army of the G. A. soldier is for. I do not know of a body of even grown men who could have done the work of the high school cadets any better than they have. In fact, I doubt if any body of grown men would have been so thoroughly obedient and faithful in the thousand and one small matters that were necessary to the comfort of the old soldiers. No matter what was needed, the cadets did it; whether it was to get some medicine or a drink of water for a tired veteran, or to find his room for him after he had lost it. If we had taken a vote to thank any one organization in particular in this city, where so many have done so well, we would without doubt have given that vote to the cadets.

The Sait Lake high school cadets are the best military body of its average age that I ever saw outside of West Point and Annapolis. In some ways the cadets here surpass even those in the two great schools, because there the boys are trained to make such work the end and aim of their whole life and know nothing else but discipline and duty, but here the cadets served only as a matter of a few days, something out of their regular course of life. Polite, quick, faithful sure, patient, intelligent, the Salt Lake high school cadets deserve a formal vote of thanks from your city, engrossed and signed. As the adjutant of the commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. I here praise.

Friday spoke as one man concerning the cadets. H. M. Nevius, the ex-commander in chief of the G. A. R. and the official head of all the visiting G. A. R. veterans, said:

Uniforms, parades, salutes, music and all that, are but the finery of military service. Get the thing done—is what the copy and in the copy of even grown men who could have done the work of the high school endets any tee. For Mr. Taylor, are successful to the command the co thee. For Mr. Taylor's use, and without which he and the cadets would have been helpless, was a complete card index of all the available rooms of the city. This index showed where the rooms were located, whether or not they had a bath in connection, whether or not meals were served, the number of beds, whether the room was in a hotel, block or private house, the number of the telephone, what car lines to take and the price charged. This intake and the price charged. This invaluable list was prepared in the information headquarters under the charge of the committee chairman, Mrs. W. H. Jones, and was largely the work of Mrs. L. C. Stocking and her efficient stenographer, who had worked on it for making the charge age.

ONE OF THE HAPPIEST REUNIONS

Captain Cone related an incident which occurred before the surrender of the port, concerning the quality of food which was furnished to the Confederate soldiers. He said that about two weeks after the sleep began the Union soldiers heard in the night time a steam engine puffing, and thought that the enemy was about to escape. They heard the engine each reunion.
